Maine rejects a state income tax, preferring to depend upon the tourists, it says.

The New York Stock Exchange is a meter of sensations but it failed to register in time that which happened in its immediate neighborhood yesterday.

Candidate Cox is finding out what his ambitious office-seekers learn, that the voice is a member which has to be handled with care if not with finesse.

If the Germans had dropped a bomb on New York City they couldn't have done more effective work than was accomplished last Thursday. The explosive was directed at the very heart things.

Speaking of the opening of the season, the Ludlow Tribune wonders how many of the bivalves they put in a stew this season. What? The number, Bro., see to it that the bivalves never have opportunity to do a like service again.

Contrasting Vermont's loss of 3535 population with Maine's gain of 4000, the Boston Globe rises to inquire how many of Vermont's population decided to become Mainiacs. Too many, perhaps, but they didn't have to go to Maine to change.

Women who failed to register in time to vote in the Vermont primaries will no doubt do so before the general election in November; but they lost their chance to have a say in the virtual election of a Vermont governor, for nomination means election as a rule.

Using a seaplane to spot schools of fish in the Atlantic ocean seems almost like taking undue advantage of the funny tribe but it is going to reduce the cost of living so far as fish are concerned because greater quantities of fish are being taken off the Atlantic coast.

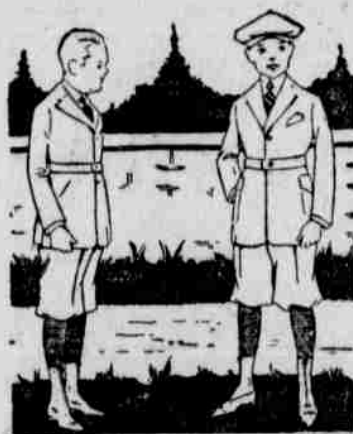

In case ex-President Taft takes the lead in behalf of Candidate Harding, he will be required to exercise some discrimination on the topics he discusses, for instance, the league of nations. He is scarcely in accord with Harding, Lodge and a great many other leaders of the Republican party. Nevertheless, Taft is a sort of man who would appeal to many serious-minded people in the Republican party and could be used effectively.

Those who consider there is nothing interesting in flowers might change their minds if they had seen the 766 different species displayed this summer at the Fairbanks museum in St. Johnsbury. Vermont is a wonderful state to be able to display so many forms of plant life in the summer season; and it is probable that the list might have been materially lengthened. Quite a study and very interesting, we should say.

So far as the readers of the newspapers of Vermont know, there has been some of the customary line of felicitations from the defeated to the victor in Vermont's recent primary. Surely there is not enough rancor left in the breast of the three defeated Republicans to prevent them from expressing their good wishes to the winning candidate. Perhaps the felicitations have already been sent and have merely failed to get into the public print.

According to the findings in the case of a little boy who was killed by a revolver bullet at Willoughby, an older boy had placed a loaded revolver on the ground while he engaged in carrying wood into the woodshed of his father's house and the younger boy began to manipulate the weapon and at length put a bullet into a vital part of his own body. It is rather strange that the older boy's sense of self-preservation which induced him to remove the revolver from his person while he engaged in work was not extended to a greater degree than it was for the protection of others who might come in contact with the revolver after it had been removed from the owner's person. In other words if he thought it was not safe for him to carry the revolver about his person while he went about work which might have carried an element of danger to himself, why did he not realize that there might be equally as much danger to someone else if he left the weapon lying where prying fingers could get hold of it? It was a sad lack of reasonable caution, to say the least.

lege student, who shot and killed a college mate, Henry E. Maroney, last June, to a term of not less than 15 years and not more than 20 years in the New Hampshire state prison closes what promised to have been one of the most sensational cases in recent criminal history in New Hampshire. Aside from the major matter of manslaughter there were ramifications in regard to the unlicensed traffic in liquor which would have developed some serious consequences, it is thought. Now that the homicide case is disposed of, it is probable that the alleged traffic in intoxicating liquors smuggled from Canada will not be taken up, or at least investigation will not be carried out so vigorously as it otherwise would have been. As regards the sentence of 15 years for manslaughter, there will be a general feeling that the punishment fits the crime.

WHY WASN'T THE WARNING REPORTED?

One young man residing in the vicinity of New York City now declares he received a warning on Sept. 9 to stay out of the New York financial district, chiefly Wall street, until after Sept. 16. There is no evidence that this young man, or any of the others who are alleged to have received similar warning, took the trouble to acquaint the authorities of city, state or nation with the nature of the communication received. On the contrary this young man simply waited for developments. Those developments came on Sept. 16. The particulars the world knows. For failure to make known the information, scanty as it might be, which came to him the young man was indirectly, perhaps, a contributing factor to the worst tragedy of that nature to occur in the United States in a long time. At least the presumption is that the young man failed to do his duty because no public warning of the impending disaster was given out. He ought to be called upon to explain his failure.

CURRENT COMMENT

Alexander Dunnnett.

The death of Alexander Dunnnett of St. Johnsbury removes a lifelong Vermont who has brought distinction to his state and honor to the profession of law. All his public activities have been in the state or in representing the state in the national councils of his political party. His support once pledged to a political aspirant was effectively extended to the last, regardless of the promise of success, as shown by his support of the late Congressman Grout in his unsuccessful fight for the United States senatorship with the present Senator Dillingham and more recently in his firm adherence to Colonel Wood in the Republican national convention. Alexander Dunnnett was a true sport and met obstacles with a patience and courage that won admiration. His judgment of men was always independent, formed and accepted with complete confidence. He liked men and in return they liked him and enjoyed his delightful companionship. Many a successful man of to-day is indebted to him for an encouragement and sympathy that impelled them to greater and better accomplishment. He is gone, but his love for and faith in Vermont and Vermonters remain to influence and comfort his hosts of friends in all circles into which he entered while on earth.—Brattleboro Reformer.

CALAIS

Funeral of Mrs. Elsie J. Hathaway Held at Her Home.

The many friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mrs. Elsie J. Hathaway Sunday, Sept. 12, to pay the last tribute to a dear friend. Always speaking cheerful words to those in trouble and ready to help care for the sick, regardless of self, made her dearly loved by all who knew her. Miss Dean Holt spoke words of comfort and sympathy to the family, who will feel her loss more and more as the days go by.

Those from out of town to attend the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Kelton and Nahum Kelton of East Montpelier; Harry and Wilbur Hawkins of Montpelier; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fitch, East Montpelier; Mr. and Mrs. Leon Ellis of North Montpelier; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bliss of East Montpelier; Mrs. Eugene Clowse of Richmond; Mrs. L. Hall of Worcester; and Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Doty of Worcester.

Flowers were given as follows: Spray of asters, brothers and family; roses, Maple Valley granite; roses, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Wheeler, Miss Alice and Glee Hancock; roses, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Hancock; roses, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Doty; purple asters, Nora Wheeler; white roses, Marion and Leon Wheeler; white geraniums, Lilla Lamb; dahlias and mixed flowers, Mrs. Freppetto; sweet peas, Everett Morse; hydrangeas, Norman Wheeler; bouquet, Jetta Chase; purple asters and ferns, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Clowse; purple and white asters, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Kelton and family; spray of asparagus and pink and white petunias, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Holt and Alice Holt; dahlias and gladioli, Mrs. Bert Britton; pink asters, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Converse and family; purple and white asters, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Mann and family; hydrangeas and asters, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fitch; sweet peas, Mrs. Reuben Parker; dahlias and asters, Georgia Fowler; hydrangeas, Mrs. Bruce, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Dunham, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Dunham; "Heart of France" asters and sweet peas, Gertrude and Glee Wheelock; pansies, Mrs. Arthur La-Cross.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank the many friends and neighbors for the cheerful letters, cards and beautiful flowers sent during the illness of Mrs. Hathaway, at home and while at the hospital.

His One Chance.

"I believe," said the impatient man, as he put aside the telephone, "that I'll go fishing."
"Didn't know you cared for fishing."
"I don't ordinarily. But it's the only chance I have of finding myself at the end of a line that is not busy."—Boys' Life.

A Big Thing!

You may think it's a little thing to save a dollar and deposit it on your savings account but, as a matter of fact, it is a mighty big thing. It's the habit that counts.

What hope would there be for civilization and what progress could we make as a nation if the virtue of thrift were not a part of our character? New England thrift even promises to play an important part, yes, a leading part, in the nation's politics eventually spreading its influence to world affairs.

It is the savings of former generations that has made possible the development of the telephone, the telegraph, the electric light, the automobile, moving pictures, the phonograph, the flying machine, farm machinery, the cylinder printing press, the steamboat, the cotton gin, and many other American inventions.

These wonderful products of science could never have been brought within reach of those who are so generally using them to-day except through the savings of the people; it was their money that promoted their manufacture and sale; their confidence in the men connected with the different enterprises that led them to this action.

We are reaping the rewards of their thrift, and so to-day, your dollar deposited on your savings account will go to promote industry and stabilize credit making the world a better place to live in and increasing the opportunities of succeeding generations.

A good part of your dollar will go directly to stimulate home industry and make Barre a bigger, better and busier city and help her maintain her reputation as a city of provident, progressive people.

Thus banking becomes to us more than a name; in our desire to co-operate toward the upbuilding of this city and its industries, it ranks as a high type of public service.

You and your friends are welcome to avail yourselves of any of our various facilities.

A cornroast was held last Wednesday night on the ledge by the young people. All report a wonderful time.

In the village precinct at the primaries last Tuesday, Emery received 81 votes, Hartness 28, Agan eight, Babbitt five; Dale 58, Gordon 29, Gibson six. This town was conceded to Emery and the Hartness vote easily showed what was coming. Dale carried this section with Gordon running second. If Gordon had advertised the fact a little he could have easily carried this town as Dale was not a popular man, yet he was more so than Gibson and these were the only two men known to the voting public. There was no name up as town representative.

IN THE CAPITAL CITY SCHOOL ALBANY, N. Y.

Twenty-one names were written in, among them Tyler 21, Fellows six, Clark six. Clark received several more but they were improperly made out. A caucus will soon be held in which a Republican man will be nominated.

The Rexall stores throughout the country are holding a straw vote for president. This straw vote in 1916 was the only one in which Wilson was returned a winner. So far in the local Rexall store 25 ballots have been cast. Cox, men nine, women one; Harding, men eight, women six. Total, Cox 10, Harding 15.

Mrs. R. E. Farwell gave a dinner party last Wednesday evening to several of her intimate friends.
